ABOUT JOHN HELL-THE CLASSES WHO OP-POSE BROWNLOW. The following letter from Governor

Brownlow appears in the Knoxville Whig. NASHVILLE, August 5.
Rev. Dr. Schon, after an absence at the South for some time, has returned, and is on his way to Washington in search of pardon. He talks like a man of sense, and sdmits that he did not sot like a man of sense when he joined in with the rebellion. The Doctor is thoroughly subjugated, and intends to make a good citizen from this

I have had a long interview with John Bell. He inten years older, in appearance, than when the war began. His teeth are now and that affects his speech. His hair and whiskers are very gray, and he is very part and whiskers are very gray, and he is very gray and be staff like.

I treated him very kindly. He talks very freely about the rebellion, and in opposition to it. I secompanied the old gentleman to the headquarters of General Thomas, and after a short but agreeable interview with the General, we went to the office of the Provost Marshal-General, where the old gen tleman took the amnesty oath, and placed himself right on the record. Those who are so greatly displease with my course as Governor, and who see such revolting doctrines in my editorials and proclamations, are of the following classes, nine cases out of ten:

1. They are rebels and have been guilty of trying to destroy the federal govern-2. If not rebels, they are rebel sympa thizars, and have kin involved in the rebel lion, and my teachings have not aided in

3. Last of all they are persons who have lost their dear negroes, and they are out-reged with the federal government, and at war with all who do not regard Lincoln's emancipation as unconstitutional and contrary to God's word ! W. G. BROWNLOW,

Hystorious Disappearance of a Young Lady. [From the Troy Press, August 16.] Considerable excitement exists in Glenn's Falls and vicinity over the mysterious disappearance of a young girl whose parents reside a short distance from that village, on the road leading to Saratoga. The name of the father is Lewis J. Young. Last Wednesday the eldest of four children, Agnes, a bright pretty girl of sixteen years, was sent by her mother to get an egg from a turkey a nest some twenty or thirty rods from the house. The nest was on the bor der of a deeply wooded ravine, which stretches for some distance up the south bank of the Hudson river. Between the house and the woods a slight knoll or elsvation intervenes. An hour elapsed, and another, and still the girl did not return from her errand. The family at length became alarmed, search was made, nothing could be found of the missing girl. Wednesday sight the woodswere thoroughly searched, but to no effect. Thursday morning the intelligence was carried in every direction, the community round about aroused, and the search commenced in earnest. For three days it was kept up but all to no avail. The egg, found broken and lying on the ground a few feet from the nest, alone gave evidence that Agnes had visited that locality. When she let she had on her every day clothing, and was without cloak, shawl or extra clothing f any description. Although every effort had been made up to Sunday night, nociue had been found to the girl or her where-

(Col. Hurd) I remember well to have first seen when we met upon the summit of Big Mount Sewell, in West Virginia, in the fall of 1861, and there in the cold, dismal storm, sat watching the enemy on the opposite mountain ridge. I find here also a worthy young man who was with me in desired. the hour of misfortune, when, attempting to obey the order given to cross the Potomac, probably shed for his country the first blood drawn from any soldier in Ohic.

I find here men and officers who were with me in the Valley of the Shenandoab, with me in the South Fork, in the Valley of the Potomac, at the second Buil Run, over the Bine Ridge. And I am inspired, as you too are, by the music of a band which I last heard on a hotter day than this, and when hetter missiles than the glances from the bright eyes of the ladies before me, few thick and fast through the air.

[From the Washington Chronicle, August 18]
It is with sincere regret that we learn of the continued illness of the distinguished tragedian whose name heads this article.

For many years he has labored to improve and elevate his profession in this country, and his efforts have never failed to call forth the hearty plaudits of an admiring and appreciative public. In his remarka-ble impersonations of the great characters of Shakspeare he has had but one equal and no superiors. As a thoroughly read student of the Bard he stands deservedly bigh, and as a liberal patron of the arts Edwin Forrest will long be held in remembrance. We hope soon to be able to chronicle his complete restoration to health and vigor, and his early resumption of the sock w. s. cham.
